Of Avoiding Superfluity in Words

Fly the tumult of men as much as thou canst; for the talk of worldly affairs is a great hindrance, although they be discoursed of with sincere intention; for we are quickly defiled, and enthralled with vanity. Oftentimes I could wish that I held my peace; and that I had not been among men.

But why do we so willingly speak and talk one with another, when notwithstanding we seldom return to silence without hurt of conscience? The cause why we so willingly talk, is because of discoursing one with another, we seek to receive comfort one of another, and desire to ease a heart over wearied with conflicting thoughts; and we very willingly talk and think of those things which we most love or desire; or of those which we feel are contrary unto us. But alas, oftentimes in vain, and to no end; for this outward comfort is the cause of no small loss of inward and divine comfort.

Therefore we must watch and pray. Lest our time pass away idly. If it be lawful and expedient for thee to speak, speak those things that most edify. An evil custom and neglect of our own good often maketh us to set no watch before our mouth. Yet devout discourses of spiritual things do greatly further our spiritual growth, especially when persons of one mind and spirit be gathered together in God.

(The Imitation of Christ by Thomas á. Kempis Book 1, Chapter 10)

A list of Children's books recommended by Fr. James Jackson, FSSP
Books for the Nursery

Literary experience begins for very young children with someone reading aloud while they look at the pictures. They can read simple stories which they love at an early age. Although this is a rather unscientific thought, I would maintain that if you want your children to read (you would please God, since reading is the work-horse of learning), then you must read yourselves, and read to them.

Nursery books are for children from ages 2-7.
